Local 4-H volunteers recognized for years of work

by Tamara Collins
Didsbury Review

As Canada celebrates 90 years of 4-H, Didsbury locals, Bert and Pat Pringle are celebrating as two of the three new 2003 inductees to the Alberta 4-H Hall of Fame. The Pringles and Leona Petherbridge of Bon Accord, now join 57 other Alberta volunteers in the Hall of Fame, which has been around since 1971.

"Alberta has a strong and proud history with 4-H as do these three Albertans," said Shirley McClellan, deputy premier and minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Development. "This year's inductees have truly made youth development a part of their life's work."

The Pringles has been involved in 4-H for 30 years. They have served as leaders of the West Didsbury Beef Club, and held executive positions at district, regional and provincial 4-H councils.

"We were not expecting this," said Pat. "It is like winning an Oscar, you just do it because you enjoy it and hope you are doing a good job."

They have both been long time members of the Olds and Didsbury Agricultural Societies. In 2002 the Pringles received the Didsbury Agricultural Society Commemorative 100th Anniversary Rural Volunteer Award.

In 2001 they received the IC McCullough Award for Community Service, in 1996 the Didsbury Agricultural Society Rural Volunteer Award, in 1990 they received the Gole and Son's Leadership Recognition Award, and lastly in 1989 the Calgary 4-H Regional Recognition Award.

"We just love seeing the kids excel," said Pat. "That is reward enough for us."

To the Pringles 4-H represents a big happy family.

"We get to meet so many people from all over Canada," said Pat. "The opportunities are endless in 4-H."

Pat started out as a Beef member, and at a regional show, "4-H On Parade" is where Pat met her husband Bert.

Bert is presently the chairman of the 4-H On Parade Executive Committee, and also a member of the Provincial Beef Advisory Committee. Pat is a member of the Celebration of Town Committee.

"There really is an endless avenue of opportunity of things to get involved in with 4-H," said Pat. "It is a great thing."

Pat and Bert will be officially honoured at the 4-H Leaders Conference on January 10 in Red Deer.

"They have devoted themselves to the youth of this province," said McClellan, "And have made the 4-H program a richer experience for every young Albertan they have mentored."

Vigilante arsonists jailed

by Dan Singleton

Two men who attempted to burn down a Didsbury residence in an act of vigilante justice against a suspected pedophile living in the home have been jailed.

Judge Gordon Clozza said Robert Charles McCart, 24, and Jamie Andres, 21, showed gross disregard for the lives of the three occupants of the house when they started the fire early on the morning of July 25, 2002.

"They attempted to burn down the house with people in it," said Clozza. "It was a vengeance act. I'm surprised they weren't charged with attempted murder. This is extremely serious. You cannot have people going around torching people's homes out of spite."

McCart and Andres each pleaded guilty to a charge of arson and were sentenced in Didsbury provincial court on Monday.

Crown prosecutor Danny Elliott told Judge Clozza that Andres and McCart brought a jerry can filled with gasoline to the residence at about 2 a.m.

Once at the house, the men splashed gasoline on an outside wall, lit the fuel and fled from the scene.

The occupants became aware of the fire and fled the residence without injury. The occupants managed to extinguish the fire themselves and call police.

McCart and Andres were arrested a short time later. Andres suffered minor burns in the incident.

McCart and Andres knew one of the occupants of the residence was a man accused of sexual assault against a young person known to them," prosecutor Elliott said.

"Mr. McCart was interested in exacting some vigilante justice," said Elliott.

Andres read a prepared statement, saying, in part, the following: I'm truly sorry for what I've done. I didn't want to be a bad person."

McCart did not speak during Monday's court appearance.

Judge Clozza sentenced both men to 18 months in jail, prohibited them from possessing firearms for 10 years, and ordered each to submit a sample to the national DNA data bank.

The intended victim of the arson, Adam Fernando Bercier, 23, pleaded guilty in Didsbury provincial court on Dec. 4, 2002 to one count of sexual assault.

At the time, Bercier admitted sexually assaulting an eight-year-old girl in his care over a nine month period in 2001 and 2002. He was sentenced in February to three years in prison.

A publication ban protects the identity of Bercier's victim.

STATEMENT OF CLAIM

Mountain View County suing ratepayer

by Carla Victor
Olds Albertan

Mountain View County (MVC), on behalf of Councillor Linda Burrell, will be seeking $50,000 damages from its ratepayer Arnie Shea.

A Statement of Claim, obtained from Alberta's Court of Queen's Bench, revealed the amount of damages that will be sought in the lawsuit against Shea.

The Statement of Claim stated the lawsuit resulted because of alleged defamatory comments made by Shea, about Burrell, in a letter that was published, July 26, to Ian Harvie, Reeve of Mountain View County and Division 4 Councillor, all of the elected councillors of Divisions 1, 2, 3, 6 and 7, CAO Harold Johnsrude and Ty Lund, Sundre's MLA and Minister of Infrastructure.

The claim went on to charge: the letter was defamatory of the Plaintiff (Burrell) and was intended to, and has, damaged the Plaintiff's character, and her professional and personal reputation. The defamatory contents of the letter were false, and were published with malice, and were designed to permanently damage the Plaintiff's character and reputation.

Dan Scott, legal counsel for MVC, stated, in the Claim, that words quoted throughout the letter are defamatory in their natural meaning. Further they were intended and understood to mean the Plaintiff: had violated the Municipal Government Act, and deliberately violated her oath of office; was holding property owners hostage as revenge against the Defendant and the Mountain View Taxpayers Association; was vindictive and unfair, and was degrading the integrity of the Council of MVC; was planning a criminal act; was acting improperly, and in breach of trust; had blatantly abused her authority as chair person and MVC representative; was guilty of misconduct and unruly behaviour; had acted improperly, was vindictive in her actions, and had attempted to intimidate the Defendant; had violated the rights of MVC residents.

As of Nov. 6, Shea said he had not been served.

Scott said the Statement of Claim notifying Shea of the lawsuit was sent to Shea through registered mail.

"Trying to remain civil, we sent it to him registered mail, so a processor wouldn't have to bother him at home," said Scott. "As far as we know, it (the Statement of Claim) is at the post office waiting for him."

Hearing the amount that will be sought in damages Shea said: "I am in limbo, very saddened by it all. I can't believe this mess is going on in this county."

At this time, Shea said he has no communications with the county.

Johnsrude said he cannot comment any further on this issue, except to say it is unfortunate.

In August, MVC unanimously decided to begin legal action against Shea.

In September it was decided unanimously, by MVC council, that any damages awarded would be used to pay legal expenses with the remaining sum going to Burrell.

Burrell said she cannot comment on details pertaining to this litigation. In the past, Burrell has said she is in agreement of the terms set out by MVC.

Shea is a resident of the Molmac subdivision, west of Sundre, which has dealt with a river erosion controversy in the past.

Shea is a former 2001 MVC Division 5 candidate, who lost the election to Burrell, and a director of Mountain View Taxpayers Association.

IN THE COURTS

16 year old Olds boy goes on crime spree

by Dan Singleton

Drunk driver jailed for second conviction

A man who helped himself to a truck outside a Carstairs bar and drove away, despite being drunk at the time, has been jailed. Daniel Neil MacDonald pleaded guilty Nov. 3 to charges of driving with a blood alcohol level greater than 80 mg per cent and possession of stolen property.

The accused took a set of keys he spotted on a table as he left the bar early on the morning of May 27, court heard.

He was stopped by police a short time later. His blood alcohol level at the time was 210 mg per cent.

The accused had been charged with impaired driving one week prior to his arrest. He was subsequently convicted of that offence.

It was a very stupid mistake, MacDonald told Judge Hamilton.

The judge ordered MacDonald jailed for 14 days and placed on probation for an additional 12 months. She also prohibited him from driving for one year.

Drunk driver fined

A man arrested after a citizen phoned police to report a driver swerving and driving on the shoulder on Hwy 2 has been convicted of drunk driving.

Robert James Worley, 58, pleaded guilty on Nov. 3 to a charge of driving with a blood alcohol level greater than 80 mg per cent.

The accused was stopped on the highway on September 21, court heard. His blood alcohol level at the time was 170 mg per cent. Worley, who has a previous impaired driving conviction, was fined $1,150 and prohibited from driving for one year.

Man called woman from jail cell

A man who used his one telephone call after being arrested to phone a woman he was under court order not to contact has been jailed.

Chris Paul Glynskie pleaded guilty to charges of disobeying a court order, driving with no insurance, and operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

The accused was taken to the Didsbury RCMP detachment on Oct. 21st after phoning the woman from a shop in Mountain View County, court heard.

Once at the station, he called the woman again.

Noting the accused was held in custody since Oct.

21, Judge Hamilton ordered him jailed for one day on the disobey court order charge. She fined him $2,875 on the no insurance charge.

Man pleads not guilty to weapons offences

A 51-year-old man charged following a standoff with police north of Sundre on September 28 will go to trial in February.

John William Dean pleaded not guilty on Nov. 3 to eight charges including assault causing bodily harm, uttering threats, careless use of a firearm, possession of a weapon, and break and enter.

Dean will go to trial on those charges in Didsbury on February 2.

The accused also pleaded not guilty to two charges of uttering a forged document. He goes to trial on those counts on March 24.

Meanwhile, Dean pleaded guilty to a host of other unrelated charges including failing to attend court, driving without a licence, failing to stop at the scene of an accident, disqualified driving, and personation.

Noting the accused has been in custody for more than a month, the judge ordered him jailed for one day on each charge, with the sentences to run concurrently.

Boy went on crime spree

A 16-year-old Olds boy who broke into the Olds College on two occasions during a crime spree across Mountain View County has been placed on probation.

The accused, who cannot be named, pleaded guilty to two charges of break and enter, breach of probation, failing to comply with a court order, possession of liquor, theft, possession of stolen property.

The boy broke into the College Library and stole money on two occasions last spring, court heard.

He also stole liquor from the Didsbury Five-O Club in July, broke into a Didsbury man's house and stole cash, stole a wallet from a vehicle parked in Olds, and stole CDs and cash from another vehicle.

He has assured me that the courts have seen the last of him, his lawyer told the court.

In response, Judge Hamilton warned the boy that further criminal activities may result in further jail time.

The doors are always open there to slam behind you, the judge said.

The accused did not speak during his court appearance.

The boy spent 146 days in custody prior to last week's court appearance.

Taking into account the pre-sentence jail time, Judge S. Hamilton sentenced the boy to two years probation.

The probation includes a strict night-time curfew. The curfew will be monitored under a new Solicitor General watch program, court heard.

Boy threw snowballs at teacher

A 17-year-old boy who hit a teacher with a snowball outside the Caroline School last April has been placed on probation.

The boy, who cannot be named, pleaded guilty on Nov. 3 to a charge of assault. The Crown withdrew charges of uttering threats, assault with a weapon and mischief.

The boy, who is not a student at the school, hit the teacher on April 29.

She was not injured, court heard.

You want to be an adult. Perhaps it's time you started acting like one, the judge said.

She placed the boy on probation for six months. The probation includes a provision that he not throw snowballs or any projectiles during the next six months.

HEALTHCARE

Calgary Health Region preparing to expand

by Tamara Collins

With the soon to come transfer of Didsbury, Carstairs, Cremona, and a portion of Mountain View County to the Calgary Health Region from the David Thompson Health Region, a preliminary meeting was held last week to discuss the upcoming issues this would cause. Calgary Regional Health Authority met and discussed a number of issues and requirements.

Issues were categorized as urgent, which means they will be addressed prior to the official Dec. 1, transfer, transitional issues, which may be addressed over a longer phased in period, and potentially long term opportunities for sharing and collaboration through purchased service arrangements.

Individuals from the two Regions will be in close contact to ensure issues such as payroll, H.R. contracts, service profiles, and shared services during the transfer will be addressed.

There are several programs such as SHIP which will be addressed at the end of the school year if changes are to be made, so services to the children will not be compromised.

The main objective is to ensure that issues are dealt with in a timely fashion and collaboratively between the Regions so that there is minimum further stress on the staff, and uncertainty and doubt around their positions can be removed as quickly as possible. It is essential that services continue to be delivered without problems during the transition.

OPINIONS EDITORIAL

For the love of animals

I am an animal person, and have always been one. In Calgary I both worked and volunteered at the Humane Society. Everyday I would see little helpless creatures brought in that were beaten and abused. It boggles my mind how anyone could be so inhumane, and purposely hurt their pet, or someone else's pet, or a wild animal. There are so many animals out there that need a good home. Somewhere where they will be loved and properly taken care of.

I adopted my kitten Tigger from the Humane Society. I couldn't even express to you how much joy that little guy brings into my life. He has so much personality and character. I love the way he races around, and loves to play. He is the best cuddler. Tigger brightens all my days! He is going on six months old, and still learning about things each day.

The joy animals bring into this world is so tremendous, and I would suggest to everyone of you who believes they have the time and love for an animal that you should get one. Not just anyone, but one from the Humane Society, where they otherwise go without. Many people believe getting a free cat from a litter or an ad is better, or cheaper I should say. Well to take that cat and get it fixed, tattooed, microchipped if you want, that all adds up. Usually to over $200. You can adopt a cat from the Humane Society for $120, and that includes all of the above, and information about your cat, and discounts for future vet visits. It is a such a great deal, and now that I know Tigger and how much I love him, I would of been willing to pay a lot more for him.

Most animals have the ability to bring a joy into your life, that you would otherwise not experience. They are always there for you, they don't yell at you, they love you unconditionally.

No words can explain the way you feel when they jump up on to your lap and curl up, obviously feeling so safe and content.

Give them food and water, a warm play to sleep, play with them, and love them.

In return you will forever be loved and made to feel so special.

FROM THE MP'S DESK

Liberals Pass Morally Flawed Bill

Myron Thompson, Member of Parliament for Wild Rose, was disappointed last week as the Liberals passed legislation dealing with reproductive technologies and related research. This included: prohibitions on human cloning, the regulation of fertility clinics, rules for surrogacy and research using human embryos.

The Canadian Alliance has serious reservations about this legislation, including its provision on surrogacy, research using human embryos, and the structure of the proposed Assisted Human Reproduction Agency. Thompson said, "Although Canada needs a bill on reproductive technologies, this is not the bill we need. This bill is seriously flawed and has major loopholes."

"There are some aspects of this bill that we support," stated Thompson, "for example we fully support the ban on human and therapeutic cloning, commercial surrogacy, and the buying and selling of human reproductive materials. We support the regulation of fertility clinics and sperm banks through a new regulatory agency."

As far as research on human embryos, the Alliance has been calling for a three-year prohibition on embryonic stem cell research and for the federal government to encourage its granting agencies to focus on more promising adult (post-natal) stem cell research.

November 15th will mark the 10th anniversary of the report of the Royal Commission on New Technologies. "The Liberals," said Thompson, "had 10 years to thoroughly research all aspects of this bill, ban human cloning, and regulate reproductive technologies. Now, at the eleventh hour, they rammed through a seriously flawed bill."

Thompson concluded, "The Canadian Alliance has always supported a free vote on this legislation. It was no surprise that the Prime Minister did not accord Liberal MPs the same courtesy."

Wonderings of the heart

by Margaret Fradley
"A Refreshing Day Out"

Late in September saw nearly eighty seniors filling up two buses and wending their way to the Kananaskis Country. The opportunity was evidenced by the eagerness of all those who went along.

The day the organizers chose could not have been better, there was not a cloud in the sky, it was lovely and warm, not too hot; there was no wind, and the icing on the cake was the beautiful display of fall colors, the trees seemed to be at their best, the bright yellows, oranges, different shades of green with the occasional shimmer of red, was just like fairyland, it was indeed spectacular to say the least. We couldn't get enough of that beauty.

We had all been informed to take a bag lunch, which we all enjoyed at Elbow Falls, just a beautiful spot by the river, surrounded by color, some found tables, some sat on rocks by the river, other, more agile and more adventurous walked up to a higher elevation to enjoy the view and waterfall. It was a perfect day ending with our having supper in Cochrane. Perhaps a little weary but thankful for the opportunity, we made our way home.

One thing I have to mention is that the bus trip was much quieter with the men along, than when the women travel together. I wonder why that is?

"Farewell, Mr. Tuition Cap."

Dear Editor,

"Farewell, Mr. Tuition Cap." Students across the province are saying those exact words, preparing for a deregulated post-secondary education system. I am one of them, and I'm afraid nobody is going to hear us mourn it. I am also afraid that Mr. Tuition Cap is such an influential personality that the entire economy is going to miss him. But of course, nobody realizes it until it's too late, and Mr. Tuition Cap will have gone the way of the dodo bird. The removal of the tuition cap is only one example of how the Klein government is removing democracy in our province, and bringing paternalism back in.

October 29, 2003 was the provincial day of action for students against Bill 43, a proposal by Learning Minister Lyle Öberg to combine three current post-secondary legislations into one. I had the pleasure of covering the event (which was a mock funeral for the tuition cap) and meeting some very intelligent people, but the displeasure of discovering what Bill 43 is really about to do.

The tuition cap is currently set so that post-secondary institutions cannot charge more than 30% of their operating budget to student tuition.

This is up from 20%, which was the cap in the mid-1990s. That rate was also increased in 1992 from 12%, which was in place throughout the 1980s. A tuition cap is not a cap if it keeps being increased. But now the Klein government wants to remove the tuition cap altogether.

I suppose it's not such a bad idea when you look at it. I mean, look at how well the government is doing after deregulation of health care? The money is just rolling in! What about how the government is doing after deregulating utilities management, like electricity and natural gas? Klein must feel like Ebenezer Scrooge sometimes. What's even better yet is that once a decision to deregulate is made, there is absolutely nothing Joe Citizen can do about it until the next election rolls around. The government gets all the glory, coming out with a multi-billion dollar budget surplus over the past five or more years. Why not deregulate everything, including education, and watch the money roll in if there is, and never will be, any influential opposition?

So let's just assume that now there is no tuition cap. Post-secondary institutions can now charge students whatever they want. School falls into the US model of only being for rich kids in Alberta. This takes away any extra money students have, requiring us to live in a debt we can never get out of. Already today, graduates end up with an average of $20,000 in debt.

Without a tuition cap, that number can be expected to balloon. It doesn't take a world-class economist to figure out that people who don't have money don't spend it.

So now we come to it, this is where it begins to affect other citizens who aren't in school. I'm sorry, Tim Horton's, but I can't afford a donut today. Or tomorrow. I don't expect to be able to the day after, either.

Is our economy really going to be able to handle this? Students will either attempt to go to rich kids school, and not be able to afford other amenities of life, or else they will decide to move to different institutions in Canada, and take their money elsewhere. Let's think about that. I spend about $800 per month on various expenses, including rent, utilities (which just happens to be the most unpredictable of monthly expenses), clothes and entertainment, and I live a very uneventful and cheap life. Multiplied by 12 months, and by about 7,000 university students in Lethbridge, you've got an injection of about $67 million from the University of Lethbridge alone. What would that number look like if I included an approximation of about 150,000 students from 22 publicly funded institutions? The Alberta economy experiences an injection of about $1.4 billion dollars from post-secondary students alone. That is a huge portion of that surplus the government is counting on, and they won't be able to count on it for long if they remove the tuition cap.

But that's just the cap. The Klein government is also trying to take away democracy in student associations! Boards of Governors at institutions have only about 12% representation from the student body, a student body that injects 30% of their operating budget. Does this equate? What about Bill 43, which would allow the Learning Minister to abolish a student union if he sees any "irregularities"? If students don't do what the government wants, will their union be abolished?

So what happens when you make post-secondary education unaffordable? You have fewer students. You have a huge loss of economic activity. You have nobody to fill the positions of retiring Baby Boomers. I believe the economy will hit a slump within the next 10 years, and it won't have the human capital to get back out of it.

What I'm most afraid of, though, is that nobody else in this world knows about this impending crisis! High school students, you will not be able to afford education! Parents, your children will no longer be able to afford education without substantial financial assistance from you, and don't count on Student Loans, because if the tuition cap is any indication, they won't be there. Employers, I sure hope you only require a high school diploma of your employees, because that's all that you're going to find!

We need to let the Tory government know that they're killing the Alberta economy. We can see how successful deregulation was with electricity and health care, let's not allow the Tory government to do that to education, too. Call your MLA, write a letter, or two, or three, and let the government know you don't want your economy to suffer the loss of post-secondary education. Visit www.deregulationnation.com, the student campaign website against Bill 43. Tell the Tory government you are not pleased with their move from democracy to paternalism, because if you don't today, soon you will be without voice too.

I'm just afraid that the public sector will be flat on their backs, twitching, having just been run over by the Tory Truck, and nobody will have seen it coming.

Sincerely,
Joel Windsor

Area rancher murder conviction sentence

by Dan Singleton

An area rancher convicted of second degree murder three years ago in the 1998 shooting death of a Calgary oilman has appealed his conviction and sentence.

Eifion Wyn (Wayne) Roberts, 59, was convicted by a 12-person jury on Nov. 11, 2000.

On January 15, 2001, Roberts was sentenced to life imprisonment with no possibility of parole for 15 years.

Immediately following his conviction Roberts said he would appeal the conviction and sentence. A second degree murder conviction carries a minimum 10 years in prison before being eligible for parole. Roberts shot Patrick Kent, a vice president with KB Resources, four times during an argument at Roberts' ranch northwest of Olds on Oct. 3, 1998.

Kent died at the scene. One witness to the shooting, a man who was working with Kent, said he saw Roberts pumping bullets into the victim as he lay on the dirt compound beside the well site.

Kent's death came at the culmination of a year's-long dispute over an oil well on the Roberts property. Roberts alleged contamination on the property had been caused by the KB Resources well at the site.

During his trial before Justice Peter Martin in Court of Queen's Bench, Roberts testified that he believed Kent was about to attack him when the shooting occurred just meters from the Roberts home.

"I thought he was coming towards me with his hands open," Roberts testified Nov. 8, 2000. "I was definitely afraid. I wanted to stop him from coming toward me."

The Alberta Court of Appeal has reserved judgement on Roberts appeal.

His defence lawyer, Charles

Davison, reportedly argued before the Appeal Court that the original trial judge did not properly instruct the jury on the argument that Kent provoked Roberts, Robert's wife Jean says.

She said the family is now waiting patiently for the Appeal Court ruling.

"I hope it's good news," said Jean Roberts. She said she has been told the appeal decision could take from a week to a month to a year. She confirmed her husband is serving his sentence in an Alberta prison. She didn't say which jail.

Slushie girls sentencing this week

by Dan Singleton

Three Chinook's Edge school girls who poisoned a classmate with a spiked slushie drink last spring were scheduled to be sentenced on November 12.

Crown prosecutors were expected to ask the judge to impose closed custody sentences of equal length on three Sylvan Lake girls, say officials.

The convicted teens, who cannot be named, pleaded guilty before Judge Thomas Schollie on August 18 to charges of administering a noxious substance, criminal negligence causing bodily harm and theft under $5,000.

"I will be telling the judge that this is the type of offence that is deserving of some jail time, and we'll leave it up to the court to decide if that's true and how much," said Red Deer Crown prosecutor Bert Skinner said.

"They are all equally culpable. There's not much to distinguish them," he added.

Under the new Youth Criminal Justice Act, each girl faces a maximum of 16 months in custody, eight months parole and a year probation on each charge.

"I don't think I will be suggesting a range of sentence," he said.

No negotiations between the Crown and defence were underway regarding sentencing recommendations.

Defence lawyer Clinton Yarshenko said earlier, "We are going to be arguing strenuously for a non-custodial sentence on the basis that a custodial sentence is not normally conducive to rehabilitation."

Seven girls, including two of the convicted teens, were taken to Sylvan Lake Medical Centre on April 17 after consuming a slushie drink laced with copper sulphate, a noxious chemical.

The poisoning plot, which was aimed at one girl, was hatched when the teens developed a 'dislike' for the victim, said Yarshenko.

Fundraiser to help make lodge into a home

by Tamara Collins
Didsbury Review

Opening in the beginning of next year is the new Aspen Ridge Lodge. Although the lodge will be built, it will not yet be fully equipped.

The Mountain View Housing Foundation is presently raising money for equipment for the lodge. They are working hard to turn this institute into a home for its patients.

A home like this requires pictures on the walls, coffee makers, microwaves, and a therapeutic tub, just to name a few. In total the cost of everything needed for the Lodge comes to about $250,000.

After their first meeting last May, the Foundation set a goal to raise $150,000 during the first 12 months of operation.

"Many people thought we were over ambitious, and maybe we are," said Chris Whittaker, president of the Mountain View Housing Foundation. "Nothing ventured, nothing gained."

Currently they have raised $60,000 in cash and promises of cash.

On November 29, a major fundraising event will take place to help the Foundation continue to raise this much needed money. A Christmas charity banquet and auction gala will take place at the Memorial Complex in the multi purpose room.

The event will start at 5 p.m., and the evening will feature a silent auction, a supper, raffles, and a live auction.

"We are hoping for a big turnout," said Wayne Green, treasurer of the Foundation. "Local businesses are donating things for the auction, and those who have nothing to donate, are donating their services."

Almost 300 people are expected to attend the event. Many businesses around town are going to it for their Christmas party.

"There will be a piano player playing Christmas music throughout the night," said Green. "We are also decorating the hall in a Christmas theme, it will be very nice."

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. The menu consists of turkey and stuffing, ham, many delicious salads, cauliflower and cheese sauce, and ginger carrots. You have a choice of between three desserts, cheesecake, black forest cake or apple pie.

Tickets can be purchased from the Mountain View Housing Foundation office, next to Ward's Drugs. They can also be purchased from any of the Foundation members.

"We also need volunteers for that night to set up, sell tickets, or cashier," said Green.

If you are interested in volunteering, donating to the action, or for ticket information you can contact the Foundation at 335-8404.

LETTERS FROM NIGERIA

The story of the Snyders and their adventures

Dear family and friends,

Dan and I have both found some more things to keep us busy. I thought I would take the time in this letter to tell you about some of the "extra" things (not related to our jobs) that we are involved with.

A group of us, led by Natalie, are now meeting twice a week for an hour for water aerobics. I haven't been able to talk Dan into joining us but since it is mostly women and children I am not surprised. Most of our time is spent in the shallow end doing some of the same kinds of exercises we would do on land, running, skipping, jumping, hopping and jumping jacks. Doing it in the water just makes it harder because of the resistance from the water. We have even done tae bo with all the kicking and punching. The last 15 minutes is spent in the deep end using floatation devices. By the time we finish we are tired and sleep well that night.

But that is not the end of our exercise for the week. Dan has started playing tennis again, twice a week for about an hour or so each time. He has rediscovered some muscles that he hasn't used for awhile. A group of men meet on Mondays and Thursdays for tennis. Dan is really enjoying the exercise and fellowship with the guys. He also continues to walk most mornings and spend time in the weight room.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:00 a.m. I have been attending an aerobics/tae bo class. It sometimes makes the morning a bit hectic and there have been days when I would have rather gone back to bed than gone to work but I know it is good for me. I do feel a sense of accomplishment when I go.

Dan has become part of a men's accountability group that meets at 6:30 on Wednesday mornings and a men's Bible Study on Thursday evenings. In the accountability group the men answer five questions about their relationships with God, with spouse and family, with co-workers, and how they are doing with their thought life. The last question is: have you just lied? The men's Bible study group is using the devotional method to study Isaiah. I attend a women's Bible study on Thursday afternoons. It is really nice to study God's word with other people and to have the time of joint prayer and fellowship. It was something that was missing from our schedules the past few years.

A couple of weeks ago, Ladi, the lady who cooks potatoes and sells them at school asked me if I would be willing to teach her to read. I was hesitant to agree at first because I have never taught anyone to read before. Ladi has become a friend over the years she and I have worked at Hillcrest. She has helped us out with some of our activities with the students by coming to cook potatoes and other things for snacks. She is probably at least my age if not older. Ladi really wants to be able to read her Bible. I decided I would try, so for the last few weeks Ladi and I have met several times for reading lessons. I am learning as well as Ladi. The first time I planned for too much so have learned to limit the amount of information I try to give her at one time. I am also re-learning some Hausa since Ladi's English is not very good. I commend her and am proud of her for the progress she is making. She doesn't know how to read at all and she only knows basic English. So she is trying to learn how to read and learn English at the same time. She is working very hard and her kids are helping her. Right now one of her older daughters is at home. She has finished secondary school and is waiting to go to university next year so she has been helping Ladi with her cooking as well as with her English.

With the weekly prayer meeting and extra curricular school activities we don't have much chance to get bored.

Blessings,
Janet for the Snyders

At The Kitchen Table

by
Noreen Olson

When our kids were very small I would wake up on a November morning to find one, two and sometimes three of them standing by our bed with The Christmas Wish Book from Sears. We would all cuddle under the blankets and turn the pages in the toy section while we discussed the merits of various toys and what Santa Clause might be persuaded to bring. Would the old guy spring for the really big LEGO set or maybe just one or two of the best kits, would KABALA be a game that we could play for years or would we get bored after a few days. Lite-Brite looked so pretty in the catalogue with all those lovely colors and glowing screen but wouldn't it be hard to keep track of all those little pegs and the pictures were very simple, you could get tired of them quickly. We were all suitably horrified to think that some kids wanted guns, tanks and soldiers for Christmas, and while we admired things like battery powered cars you could actually ride in, we agreed that our lack of pavement made them impractical.

It was a very sweet time and one of the Christmas Customs that I especially cherished. Kirsten and I kept it up for some time after the boys had outgrown it and I wish she and I could share it with her children but that is no longer possible unless Mom has the biceps of a weightlifter. Today's Wish Book is so cumbersome that a small kid can hardly carry it and if you were reading it in bed and it slipped from your grasp it could squash the baby.

So far this season we have received eighteen Catalogues and that's not counting Sears. Since July there have probably been six or eight of Sears alone. Of the eighteen there are only about five that I have ever ordered from and that includes National Film Board and The Great West Collection of Canadian Books. I have also ordered things from Lands' End and from Coldwater Creek and I suppose that one or both of these companies sold my name to a list because the unsolicited catalogues come correctly addressed.

I have Selections from the Museums of Canada, lovely expensive things with horrendous shipping charges. I will never place an order there.

The Smithsonian catalogue from Washington DC with nice little items like a revolving carousel table at $1,495.00 US and an additional $275.00 for white glove delivery. I will probably order three or four of those. Images of Canada is from Burnaby BC and if you simply must have the Bohemian Rapture skirt, vest and top it will cost $495.00 Plus shipping and handling of $20.00. Add $8.00 for rush delivery and $5.00 for gift wrap, 7% GST is almost $37.00 so that means that your total cost is $563.00 for a sort of rustic/chic ensemble that you might wear twice this season and once next. The National Wildlife Federation catalogue from Winchester VA has a set of porcelain dinnerware that features winter birds surrounded by holly. I love it and the price, even in US dollars, is not bad but you would only use it at Christmas, and what do you do with it during the other fifty weeks of the year?

At least forty catalogues a year, in this house alone. Multiply that by all the houses in the county and you have a recycling problem with catalogues alone. Multiply that by all the houses in Canada and you have a landfill the size of Lake Ontario. Multiply that by all the houses in the US and you have destroyed a gazillion trees. Add to this, Readers Digest Sweepstakes mailings, Telephone Books and begging letters from various charities and it's a wonder there are any trees left on the face of the Earth.

Meanwhile I will, as usual, do most of my shopping at home.

Tree of Hope getting ready for Christmas

Didsbury's Tree of Hope was decorated and trimmed up this past week getting ready for Christmas. The lights have been put on it, and in just a few more weeks, the lights will start to shine.

The Tree of Hope is an annual fundraising effort with proceeds directed towards palliative care needs within our community.

Donors are encouraged to buy a light on the tree in memory of a loved one or as a Christmas greeting of hope for someone. Last year the Tree of Hope raised over $3000.

Unique art from old computer parts

A lamp Bill Anthony created for his business.

by Tamara Collins
Didsbury Review

Recycling the old and making unique art pieces that are brand new.

Unique Stained Glass Works is new to Didsbury. Bill Anthony, owner, and his wife moved to town about six months ago.

"We drove all over the place, within an hour radius of Calgary," said Anthony, "and we loved Didsbury."

The Anthonys wanted to be near Calgary because that is the home of two of their three children, and all their grandchildren.

Anthony has been working with his hands for many years, and began working with stained glass in 1992 in Winnipeg. He was always looking for new ideas, and first started experimenting by using other types of glass in his art.

A few years later Bill was flying over Manhattan when he noticed the way the city looked from up so high.

"The grid of the city reminded me of a computer board," said Anthony. "I started to wonder if I could incorporate this look into my art."

After returning home to Winnipeg, Anthony started calling computer companies, looking for computer boards.

"Everyone thought I was crazy wanting their garbage," said Anthony.

Anthony called "Computer for Schools", and they gave him boxes of computer board to work with.

"After working with the board, I was astonished at the effect light had on them," said Anthony. "Backlit pieces take on physical properties of depth and three dimensional qualities."

Anthony went on to discover that if he curved the boards, a different effect would be created.

USG Works has a website where Anthony's work can be viewed.

"As far as I know I am the only person in North America doing this," said Anthony.

Before his days of art, Anthony was a teacher in Winnipeg for 28 years.

"I was a phys. ed. teacher for twenty of those years," said Anthony. "Then I went on to teach in the classroom."

USG Works will feature work at the Museum on November 15-18.

"We will also be having an open house on November 22nd and 23rd," said Anthony. "That show's focus will be Christmas."

Anthony's work is unique, and one of a kind. He does all the designing and work himself. "I put passion, depth and meaning in my work," said Anthony. "I like my art to be more than art, and have a purpose."

Computer board can be difficult to cut so Anthony has also created his own tools to cut it.

"With my tools I can cut it into any shape I want," said Anthony.

To view some of the art USG Works sells you can visit www.usgworks.com.

ENERGY IN ACTION

PUTTING PEOPLE AND RESOURCES TO WORK RESPONSIBLY

Leave only footprints

How does the oil and natural gas industry go about its business in the fragile foothills without disturbing the rare plants, bighorn sheep, and grizzlies that have always found a home there? It's not easy, but low impact, heli-portable seismic technology helps.

The seismic survey is a basic tool of petroleum exploration. The equipment sends out sound waves that bounce off underground geological formations and, with scientific interpretation and a bit of luck, reveal oil and natural gas deposits.

Seismic surveying however, no longer means straight, wide tracks and trails through the trees. Whenever possible, industry now uses low impact methods. Through efforts such as minimal tree cutting, narrow and meandering tracks, industry has reduced its line widths by more than 50 per cent over the past few years.

Low impact seismic was Shell Canada's approach as it assessed its remaining gas deposits within the Waterton region of southern Alberta.

Rob Symonds, Shell's Foothills Vice President, says "we're aware from our own scientific studies and consultation with stakeholders that many parts of the Waterton region are environmentally sensitive. That's why we felt it was appropriate to adopt low impact seismic techniques when evaluating our remaining reserves in the region. The result is a much smaller footprint than you would get with traditional seismic methods."

Shell's low impact seismic program was nothing less than leading-edge. Rare plants were marked with biodegradable flags so workers would not disturb them. Field biologists monitored wildlife to ensure operations avoided them. No detail was too small to examine as Shell sought to minimize the impact on the land, wildlife and archaeological resources. Even the ordinary lubricant in the ground crew's chainsaws was swapped out for biodegradable vegetable oil.

The result was a state-of-the-art survey that will hopefully tell Shell what it needs to know about the remaining gas reserves while leaving little lasting impression on the natural world.

Seismic surveying no longer means straight, wide tracks. With low impact heli-portable seismic technology, industry is reducing its impact on the environment.

Industry support for vanishing wetlands

Oil and natural gas companies have long been silent partners with Ducks Unlimited Canada in wetlands conservation.

The relationship began when Ducks Unlimited Canada formed 65 years ago. It has evolved gradually into something supportive that benefits the organization, industry, waterfowl and all Albertans.

Energy explorers and producers, who control access to many hectares of wetlands through lease agreements, let Ducks Unlimited and similar groups freely undertake research and specific conservation activities on those lands. They lower pipelines at their own expense to allow for canal construction. They adopt horizontal drilling techniques that are less disturbing to waterfowl and their habitats. They donate wetlands outright to ensure proper management. And they support numerous educational programs to ensure that young Albertans understand and appreciate the importance of wetlands conservation.

Husky Energy has been a strong supporter. In the fall of 2002, Husky was recognized for its significant contribution to preservation and enhancement of the 200-hectare Michelsons' Marsh near Lethbridge. Each year, the company also supports environmental education by sponsoring hands-on study of wetlands and by underwriting the costs of a Grade 5 wetlands study module put together by Ducks Unlimited Canada.

Perry McCormick, a Regional Manager with Ducks Unlimited, says "In today's world, conservation is an expensive business. The positive relationships that have developed between Ducks Unlimited Canada and dozens of companies in the energy sector over many years have made it possible to protect habitats, conduct vital research on waterfowl and wetlands, and teach school children about why these conservation measures matter to everyone."

With the help of companies like Husky, Ducks Unlimited Canada has conserved more than seven million hectares of wetlands habitat across Canada - that's 27,000 sections.

Wetlands act like a sponge absorbing excess water when available and releasing moisture when the surrounding land dries up. Alberta has five types of wetlands: bogs, fens, swamps, marshes and ponds.

Faces

Be on the lookout for this Coin

There's a new face in town...have you seen it? Those who have, describe it as having a sort of "shining" personality despite being in its "golden" years, relatively thin to the eye, yet weighty in value and a face etched with years of tradition. "It" is actually a specially-minted commemorative coin called the Zweiback (pronounced "tsweyback" or "tssweeback").

To help clear up any possible confusion, this Review reporter has decided to interview both faces of the illustrious Zweiback in person. The following is a short excerpt from that interview.

Review (R): So, what brings you to town?

Coin (C): I arrived just a short time ago and will be employed here to help raise awareness and remind people of your town's existence in Alberta during its upcoming Centennial in 2005.

(R): Why are you called a Zweiback? What does this mean?

(C): My name actually translates to "twice baked". It's a special kind of sweet bread baked on special occasions by the Mennonite founders of Didsbury who would bake a smaller section of bread dough on top of a larger pre-baked base. But there's more "double" facts about me that are interesting...

(R): More than just the fact that you're two-faced (one side engraved with a drawing of the Didsbury and District Museum and one side with the official Town of Didsbury emblem)?

(C): Yes, As a commemorative coin I also have a smaller section of my design, too, that is set upon a larger base. I am also worth "double" the value of a dollar, and am going to "double" as a medium of exchange in Didsbury until the end of the centennial year on December 31st, 2005. Didsbury was also part of the Northwest Territories and Canada (another double fact) before becoming part of Alberta in 1905. You could say that the community's identity has taken on a "dual" nature as a wide variety of non-German-Mennonite folk have since added their own flavor to the creation of a stable, prosperous, and pleasant rural community. And of course, you can always give back your Zweiback at any time for a toonie.

(R): How many of there are you?

(C): I arrived in a box of about 4,999 others just like me.

(R): Where can people find you?

(C): I'll be around at businesses and stores all over town.

(R): How do I spend you?

(C): Anyone can use me as regular tender at any participating business, until December 31, 2005.

(R): And if I choose to keep you?

(C): I'll make a great keepsake of our province's centennial year for you or be a wonderful Christmas gift for someone you care about. A specially-wrapped version of me (complete with a short history of Didsbury) will also be available for sale.

For more information on the Zweiback, please call the Didsbury and District Historical Society at 335-4723.

Weight not, Want not...

Youth in Didsbury need not wait any longer to enjoy all the free benefits of having their very own gym membership.

Thanks to a project being run by the Didsbury Child and Youth Club, teens can enjoy visiting the Didsbury High School Weight Room free of charge twice a week.

The Weight Room is situated in the portable located just east of the High School. Initially started as a school project, the weight room since as fallen under the many boards in the Didsbury Child and Youth Club.

Volunteer Coordinator for the facility, Renee Winter, says the Weight Room is a great place for youth to meet friends, get in a workout and discover fitness - all for free. "The weight room is open to anyone between the ages of 13 and 18 years of age," Winter explains adding that the wide array of equipment and amenities makes it attractive to those with varied interests. "We have a lot to choose from - anything from a Universal weight centre to a treadmill, stationary bicycle, free weights, and bench press...to name a few."

The Didsbury High School Weight Room is open Mondays and Thursdays from 7:00 pm - 8:30 pm. "We may open on weekends if interest warrants," says Winter. "But for now those are our hours of operation."

For further information or to donate equipment, please contact Renee Winter at 335-3083.

Didsbury citizen earns well-deserved awards

Bert Pringle

Chances are if you've lived in Didsbury for any length of time you've come across this man; Bert Pringle.

Little wonder. As a native Didsburian, Pringle has committed a lifetime of service to the community - a quality that has recently garnered him two awards of distinction.

This January, Bert and his wife, Pat, will travel to Red Deer to be inducted into the 4-H Hall of Fame. It's the second such award Bert Pringle has received recently. This fall, the Didsbury Curling Club awarded him the "Curling Coach of the Year" award for his role in leading junior curlers at the Club for a number of years.

Despite his recent accolades, Pringle says he's just another resident doing the best he can to stay involved in the community.

"I have lived here all my life...there's lots of other people out there doing just as much if not more," says Pringle.

Though humble, Pringle is proud of the work he and his wife have accomplished, particularly with 4-H. Running a beef herd of about 150 head has lent the Pringles a special appreciation for the organization and the many youth it touches. "We've lead the West Didsbury Beef Club for many, many years before moving on to do District stuff and steer shows down in Carstairs," Bert Pringle explains. As the years progressed, Pat Pringle became more involved as well; working with the "4-H on Parade" show at the Stampede - an event Bert, himself, later lead under the position of President.

"Pat also served on the Provincial council for five years or so and became involved in scholarship awards," explains Bert. "...It's been great. I wouldn't have missed any of it."

When not busy working for 4-H, Bert Pringle spent many of his winters coaching the Junior Curlers at the Didsbury Curling Club. "Keith Mullen and Gary Schurmann also helped out a lot of the time. It wasn't just a one-person job." Pringle actually was named Curling Coach of the Year back in May, but due to inclement weather Didsbury was experiencing at the time, the ceremony to hand him the award was postponed until just recently.

Despite his years of dedication to the community, Pringle says the awards and honours he has been receiving recently come as a surprise to him. "It's always nice to be recognized."

QUESTION: My 6-year-old has suddenly become sassy and disrespectful in her manner at home. She told me to "buzz off" when I asked her to take out the trash, and she calls me names when she gets angry. I feel it is important to permit this emotional outlet, so I haven't tried to suppress it. Do you agree? DR.

DOBSON: I'm afraid I don't. Your daughter is aware of her sudden defiance, and she's waiting to see how far you will let her go. If you don't discourage disrespectful behavior now, you can expect some wild experiences during her adolescent years. With regard to your concern about emotional ventilation, you are right in believing that your daughter needs to express her anger. She should be free to say anything to you, provided it is said in a respectful manner. It is acceptable to say, "I think you love my brother more than me," or "You weren't fair with me, Mommy." There is a thin line between what is acceptable and unacceptable behavior at this point. The child's expression of strong frustration, even resentment and anger, should be encouraged if it exists. You certainly don't want her to bottle it inside. On the other hand, you should not permit your daughter to resort to name-calling and open rebellion. "Mom, you hurt my feelings in front of my friends" is an acceptable statement. "You stupid idiot, why didn't you shut up when my friends were here?!" is obviously unacceptable. If your daughter approaches you rationally, as described in the first statement, it would be wise for you to sit down and try to understand her viewpoint. You should be big enough to apologize to her if you were wrong. If you feel that you were right, however, you should calmly explain why you reacted as you did and tell your daughter how you both can avoid a collision next time. It is possible to ventilate feelings without sacrificing parental respect, and your child should be taught how to do it. This communicative tool will be very useful later in life, especially in marriage.

QUESTION: My wife and I are keenly aware of how difficult it is to be good parents, and at times we feel very inadequate to do the job. How does a mom or dad know what's best for a child from day to day?

DR. DOBSON: The most dedicated parents go through times when they fear they aren't responding properly to their children. They wonder if they're overreacting or underreacting, being too strict or too lenient. They suspect that they're making major mistakes that will haunt them later on. Fortunately, parents don't have to do everything right. We all make thousands of little mistakes — and a few big ones — that we wish we could reverse. But somehow, most kids roll with these blunders and come out just fine anyway. Let me give you what I consider to be the key to good parenting. It is to learn how to get behind the eyes of your child, seeing what he sees and feeling what he feels. When you know his frame of mind, your response becomes obvious. For example, when he's lonely, he needs your company. When he's defiant, he needs your help in controlling impulses. When he's afraid, he needs the security of your embrace. When he's happy, he needs to share his laughter and joy with those he loves. Raising healthy children is not so much a science as it is a highly developed art, and most of us have the natural intuitive faculties to learn it. Take the time to observe those kids who live in your house. If you tune in closely to what they say and do, the feelings behind those behaviors will soon become apparent. Then your reaction to what you've seen will lead to more confident parenthood.

- Q. Is embalming an extra or an essential when having a funeral?
- A. Embalming is not required by law unless more than 72 hours have passed since death and the deceased is being transported by common carrier such as an airplane, train or boat, not a funeral home vehicle. Embalming is used for the temporary preservation and sanitation of the deceased for the purpose of viewing in a casket at visitation or service. Burial of the deceased can occur without embalming if the family wishes, but refrigeration would be recommended.
